Le Havre (Paris), France

Located in the province of Normandy, Le Havre is the kick-off point to Paris and the beaches of Normandy. This commercial port serves as a terminal for ferries that cross the English Channel. The city itself has been rebuilt, after having been completely destroyed during World War II.

One of the most popular tourist attractions of the area is the beach of Normandy where the Allied troops landed to start the end of the war. Still, Normandy is popular for many other reasons – churches, castles and monuments remind visitors of the past splendors and riches of the area.

Paris

About three hours away from Le Havre is Paris – the "City of Lights" – capital and largest city in France. This beautiful and artistic city, situated in the north-central part of France, is divided into two banks by the River Seine. The North Bank was historically the area where Royalty and the wealthy merchant-class lived, and today it is the government and commercial district. The South Bank, with its image of an intellectual and bohemian playground, is the site where the University was founded.

Open-air markets, sidewalk cafés, museums and multiple monuments make Paris unique unto itself. A few of Paris' many highlights include:

- Eiffel Tower: a landmark and example of early cast-iron construction. Built and designed by Alexandre Gustave Eiffel for the Paris World's Fair of 1889, it stands 984 feet high (that is without the broadcast antennae). Don't miss the chance to go to the top - the view is absolutely breathtaking.

- Louvre Museum: from its beginnings as a royal fortress to the public institution we see today, discover the Musée du Louvre. This fabulous, maze-like museum is home to one of the world's greatest art collections, including Leonardo Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa".

- Notre Dame Cathedral: this famous cathedral is a beautiful example of Gothic architecture and is where Napoleon and Josephine were crowned in 1804. The interior of the Cathedral features multicolored lights that filter through the stained-glass windows.

- Arc de Triomphe: located at Place Charles de Gaulle, this monument was built between 1806 and 1836 to celebrate the military successes of Napoleon. Standing 165 feet high, beneath the Arch are the tomb of the French Unknown Soldier and the Eternal Flame. From the top you can look down onto the Champs-Élysées, which is the road to the Arch.

- Opera House: the inspiration for "The Phantom of the Opera," it was created at the request of Napoleon III. In 1875 Charles Garnier completed it. The ceiling was painted by Marc Chagall in 1964 and looks small compared to the stage, which is the largest in the world.
